Ghastly Family Wipe-

CHIPPewa FALLS, Wis. — (AP)— Six persons died in flames and gunfire here Saturday under circumstances which prompted Police Chief Edward Holtz to the theory that Donald T. Cameron killed his son and wife and her parents, at Eau Claire, and then committed suicide.

Four bodies were taken from the charred ruins of Cameron's Lake Wisconsin cottage, burned beyond recognition—but Holtz said he believed they were.

MRS. LOUIS CAMERON DAVID, her 2-year-old son, MR. and MRS. A. W. WILK, Minneapolis, Minn., her parents.

In a cemetery near Eau Claire was found the body of Marshall Brenden with two bullet-holes in his head and a cartridge shell nearby similar to those found in the pistol with which Holtz said Cameron shot himself.

Cameron's body was found in a garage back of the cottage.

Holtz said Cameron was identified as the man who held up a filling station here at midnight Friday, wounded three men and fled with $20 a few minutes before the cottage burned. Holtz said he believed the cottage was fired with gasoline.

FOOD IS RATIONED

Discontent Reported Wide-Spread in Germany

The war in Europe becomes a test of economic strength. How this peculiar struggle is going, after three months, is described in three revelatory articles written for NEA Service by John T. Flynn. America's outstanding writer on economic and financial topics.

By JOHN T. FLYNN
NEA Service Staff Writer

Germany faces foes who have been determined to wall her in from the supplies she needs to carry on a protracted war. Can they succeed?

Germany's weakness lies in the fact that she must get a great deal that she needs from the outside. This is further aggravated by the fact that to get what she needs she must pay for it with either goods or money.

Her access to the goods of many countries is cut off by British blockade. Many products are cut off that way altogether. Other products are made so costly that they are prohibitive. The risk of shipping goods to Germany rises the price. The roundabout route they must take makes another addition to the price.

To pay for these imported goods she needs money or merchandise. She has not the money. The only money good in international trade is gold and her supply is hopelessly inadequate.

As for other goods, there she faces two obstacles.

First of all the production of war materials, along with the demands for men in the army, makes it difficult for her to operate her peace-time product factories. She is not, therefore, able to supply exports as payment for what she needs on as large a scale as necessary.

In the next place, whatever credits she has abroad she consumes in the purchase of war necessities like oil and iron. Much of her iron comes from outside Germany and must be paid for with external credits.

Great German Need Is for Gasoline

Already we hear of Germany's difficulty in getting oil from Romania. Romania is not so eager to supply it. And England and other countries are focused their buying on countries upon which Germany must rely in order to cut down her own resources. Finally now we are informed that Germany is having difficulty paying for what she can actually get in Romania.

This weakness in oil may prove her undoing. The modern army travels on its gas tank as well as its stomach.

Germany is building large plants for the production of gasoline from coal but it will be six months before her present construction will offer any supplies, and a year and a half before it is finished. And this is an enormously expensive type of gasoline.

It is difficult to see much light for Germany in these facts.

Food Essentials Are Rationed

On the daily necessity side, the picture is a little less clear. Certainly drastic rationing has gone into effect. Everybody carries his meager ration card.

While this is so, some observers insist that with this system Germany can last for a long time—she has large reserves and is thus conserving them. Goering declared brightly that Russia's great stores were opened to Germany and Dr. Ley declared ration portions would soon increase. But Russia will send no grain to Germany save what Germany can pay for. And this greatly limits that hope.

But there is another side to this. How long will the German people hold out under these conditions? Will not this affect the political situation?

Visualize Vast Underground Discontent

Many men insist that the great Catholic population, the conservative business men who have seen all swept away by taxes and enforced loans, the immense and once powerful liberal groups in Germany remain unconquered but subjected to forced silence. They say that as these sacrifices grow, the discontent will London, Eng. — (AP)— A warship brought the 3,468-ton German steamer Henning Oldendorf to a British port Saturday as the war at sea was intensified.

A wireless message reported the British steamer Brandon, 6,668 tons, was sunk by a torpedo off the west coast of England.

Eight persons were missing after an explosion destroyed the 751-ton British steamer Cora off the east coast of England. Seven were saved.

Nothing further was heard from the Japanese freighter Azuma Maru since she sent out an SOS from Scottish waters Friday.

The Danish steamer Scotia, 2,400 tons, was reported sunk in the North sea, with 21 killed.

The loss of the 525-ton French steamer Dinard was reported after collision with an unidentified ship. Two persons were missing.

French Repel Germans

PARIS, France — (AP)— The French high command asserted Saturday that renewed attacks by German patrol units along the northern flank of the Western front had been repulsed with heavy fighting.

Russians Attack

British Aid Finns

HELSINKI, Finland — (AP)— Thirty British bombing planes were reported to have reached Finland Saturday to strengthen the Finnish air forces resisting the Russian invasion.

Previously 50 Italian planes were reported received. Other military equipment was said to be arriving from other countries.

Authorities were silent on the reports, on the ground that they concerned military secrets.

Finns Attack

LONDON, Eng. — (AP)— A Reuters dispatch said whiteclad Finns on skis attacked the Russian two-mile front in the extreme north Saturday, taking the foe by surprise and inflicting heavy losses.

Jews Proscribed

BERLIN, Germany — (AP)— All Jews were ordered Saturday to leave Danzig by December 31. Notices were posted in the Reich that Jews would not be given clothing cards.

Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, estimated recently that the United States reserves of helium gas total 106,000,000 cubic feet, with a helium content of 1.8 per cent or approximately 1,890,000,000 cubic feet of helium. This is about 200 times the average annual production during the past 10 years.

Columbus Teams Whip Guernsey

Both Boys and Girls
Rally in Final Period to Win

COLUMBUS, Ark.—Columbus defeated Guernsey for the second time, Thursday, in two fast, hard fought games.

In the girls' division the tigers led all the way until the third quarter when Guernsey rallied and went one point ahead of the opposing sextet.

In the closing period Columbus rallied leading Guernsey at the end of the game 22 to 16. Stout was high point man for Columbus with 12 points.

"Curly" Haylor starred for Guernsey with 8 points. Caudle of Guernsey played a good defensive game.

In the boys' division Guernsey started the scoring early and led by a small margin all the way till the final period when three of their first stringers were fouled out.

After that the reserves played a jam up good game but for lack of experience they could not hold the Columbus first string down. As a result Columbus ran up 9 points in the final period to win from the Blue Devils 11 to 18.

Shepperson was high point man for Columbus with 7. D. Cox was high point man for Guernsey with 5. Ruthwell, for Guernsey played outstanding ball until he was called out on persons in the early seconds of the third quarter.

Eighteen persons were called against Guernsey while only 7 were called against Columbus.

Political Pledges Flayed by M'Nutt

Former Candidate Denounces Campaign
Promises

Editor of The Star: Please publish this letter to my friends.

The letters and cards from friends during the last governor's race, in response to my ads in your paper were highly appreciated. I thank every one who took time to write to me about issues in the last campaign. I hope to have your support during the coming campaign.

Today I want to have a chat with friends about violation of the Corrupt Practice Act by both candidates and citizens. The violation of this act constitutes a felony and disqualifies anyone from holding any office of public trust in the State.

Now, any candidate who secures the nomination to any office but violates any one of the Corrupt Practice acts to get the nomination should not have his name certified by the State Democratic Committee as the legal candidate of the Democratic party.

The candidate is forbidden to pay for political influence, pay for votes, make any gifts or donations while a candidate, promise any positions for political support, or advertise or cause to be advertised through his agents for free transportation to voting places when this is done for influencing votes or pay for poll tax receipts for voters.

During the last Governor's race poll tax receipts were bought by the thousands for candidates running for the highest office in the gift of the people, and the writer met at least fifty Christian and Methodist preachers and over 100 Baptist preachers who had been promised the preacher's place in the State Penitentiary. (The salary must be good or many preachers want audiences, or have a desire to preach to people who need it.)

Only a few of the Corrupt Practice acts have been mentioned and all these and many more were violated by men seeking the highest offices in the State.

Grand juries found true bills for such violations and some members of the State Democratic Committee prevented prosecutions. We know these things happened and many free citizens will testify in our State courts that the above things are true.

Now, our citizens are not all saints wearing white robes either. It is a violation of the Corrupt Practice Act for any person or representative of any organization to ask any candidate for a donation while he is a candidate. And, yet, every conceivable kind of club, and in a few instances, church organizations, were on the job asking donations from candidates, and some went so far as to say "no donations no votes."

The writer not knowing where the next money was to come from to buy gas to make it to the next town and pay for political advertising can truthfully say that he not only kept the

Field Goal Gives Henderson Win

Second-Quarter Field Goal Proves Margin of Victory

ARKADELPHIA — Udehl Bunce place-kicked a field goal in the second quarter and gave Henderson a 3-to-0 victory over Ouachita in their annual football game here Friday.

The six-foot, four-inch 195-pound Los Angeles boy did a perfect job after his hard-running mates had pounded the way within easy kicking distance of the goal.

Ouachita's attempt at forward passing in its own territory caused its defeat. One of McHane's tosses was intercepted by Bradley Davis, freshman halfback, last year with Catholic High of Little Rock, who was downed on the Ouachita 39.

Kizzia got loose for a 20-yard gain to the Ouachita 21. On two drives Hardke took the ball to Ouachita's nine. But there the Tigers dug in and wouldn't allow another yard. On fourth down, with Davis holding the ball, Bunce booted one through the uprights for a field goal.

Before the Henderson march for a score, McHane had flung a pass to J. T. Berry. Ouachita's star end, who shook off three tacklers and raced 40 yards for a touchdown which a five yard penalty for off-side, nullified.

Near the close of the third quarter Kizzia intercepted another Ouachita pass deep in Ouachita territory and was downed on the Ouachita 17.

Hardke picked up five yards through the line and Kizzia drove for three more to the Ouachita 10. But as before the Tigers presented a stonewall defense and Bunce again attempted a field goal which was wide.

With six minutes of the final quarter to play, Frank Reed went in for Ouachita and began tossing passes. One to Benson netted 20 yards, one to Tiley two, and a third to Baxter 12, but the threat, without running punch, was short lived.

The largest crowd of the season, more than 3,000 watched the grueling struggle.

The victory evened up the 32-year series at 13-all. Two games having resulted in ties. In five years no games were played. The victory gave Henderson second position the state standing and a tie for first place in the conference.

Tuberculosis Is No Respector of Persons

"In 1927, a somewhat envious college student from Detroit, who was beginning to realize that tuberculosis had definitely ended his athletic career, watched the all-American Batesville High School basketball team in action, admiring especially the play of Alvis Carpenter."

"Last month the once envious Detroit 'Junker' learned of the death of all-American Alvis Carpenter, a victim of tuberculosis."

"Tuberculosis is no respecter of persons. It attacks athlete and bookworm, rich poor, genius and dullard, cultured and uncultured."

"Tuberculosis ranks first as the cause of death of persons—between the ages of 15 and 45. It means prolonged illness to thousands of other persons in what should be their most productive years."

"This despite the fact that tuberculosis can be cured 100 per cent when discovered and treated in the early stages."

"Help find early tuberculosis. For your own sake as well as others."

"These are facts, not propaganda. The aforementioned college student was—this winter."

The paragraphs above are taken from A. F. Knney's "Just a Whiff" column in the Detroit News of April 20, 1939. It is timely now because Arkansas tuberculosis workers are doing what he urged—helping to find early tuberculosis. And the work is being financed in part by the sale of Christmas Seals. The public should buy and use these Seals not only to help the present tuberculosis but also to prevent others from becoming victims of the disease.

The negro was taken to Texarkana and placed in jail. He was scheduled to appear in federal court at Texarkana Saturday morning for a preliminary hearing.

A Girl Is Flying Teacher for Men

On the Faculty of Rensselaer Engineering School

TROY, N. Y. — (AP)— Cornely Barbara Kibbee, 25, sees nothing unusual in her new task of teaching aviation to the male students of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, the oldest school of engineering and science in the country.

Neither is she expecting complications to arise from the men students' interest in "teacher" as a prospective girl friend rather than as an instructor.

"I won't have any trouble after the first flight," she predicted. RFI, 115 years old, consistently declines to permit enrollment of young women, although requests are received every year. Officials agreed to engage Cornely Barbara as flying instructor in a Civil Aeronautic Authority class, however, "because she is a well qualified person."

Licensed as a private pilot in 1936, Miss Kibbee won a commercial pilot rating in 1937, and a flight instructor's certificate in 1939. She is a graduate of the Ryan School of Aeronautics, San Diego, Calif.

Miss Kibbee, a member of a socially prominent family in nearby Albany, N. Y., has other interests besides aviation. "Strange as it seems," she smiles, "I like to cook." In the winter she enjoys a glide over the snow on skis, as well as a glide through the air behind a thundering airplane motor.

The population of Canada is estimated at 11,193,000.

Preventing War in 1964

Something that never happened during these long years between 1914 and 1918 is happening in Europe today. People are asking their statesmen what they intend to do to the continent after the conflict is over. The man on the streets of London and Paris is interested not only in having his country win the war, but in punctuating the fight with something better than a Versailles Treaty.

During the last war, virtually the only objective of any allied nation was to hang the kaiser. That accomplished, everyone believed everything else would take care of itself. Democracy would be rescued, workers could go back to their factories, farmers to their fields; joy and peace would reign. It was as simple as that.

Today, one of the principal war aims advocated is the federalization of western Europe. The chief champion of this idea is Julian Huxley. British novelist, who feels that instead of trying to balance power, the European nations should consolidate it. Huxley would set up a United States of Europe, based up the successful American system.

Clarence Streit, American author, carries this idea a step further in the book he wrote some time before war was imminent. Streit, in "Union Now," proposes a federation of world democracies. Under the American plan, Germany, Italy, and Russia would be ineligible until they adopted democratic forms of government.

Loudest demand for a concrete declaration of allied war aims comes from H. G. Wells, British writer, who doesn't care particularly what the British and French have in mind—as long as it's something a little more solid than merely clipping Herr Hitler's ears.

There is some hope, if the people are sufficiently aroused by the spread of these ideas, that Europe's troubles can be disposed of for periods longer than 25 years at a time. Whether the next peace conference will meet after a long, harrowing war or before too much blood has been spilt, the results should be much better than they were after the Wilson-Lloyd George-Clemenceau huddle in 1919.

No matter who wins the war—if anyone wins it—the loser can't be expected to remain permanently on his knees. Economic expansion is important, and international trade is doubly essential to nations that have just gone through long years of military profligacy.

Auto Deaths Rank Eighth on List; Set of Rules Given for Pedestrians

(This is the 13th in a series of 14 articles by Dr. Fishbein on the nine principal causes of death in the United States.)

Before 1900, the motor car did not figure in the list of death causes. Now it is eighth, just ahead of diabetes. In 1937, the records show, 33,643 people died as a result of motor car accidents, which was 2.7 per cent of all the deaths.

Motor car accidents cause relatively few deaths among the very old and the very young. The majority of these deaths occur during the most productive period in human life.

There are many campaigns for the prevention of automobile accidents, and these should show some results. It has already been established by the experience of certain cities, and states that the licensing of drivers, which includes a suitable physical examination, improved lighting on roads, and development of one-way roads, are useful in preventing accidents and in lowering the death rates.

Certainly the provision of Red Cross stations where emergency treatment can be given and the development of suitable plans for hospital care are bound to be helpful. Improvement in automobile construction to make them less likely to crush when traveling at high speeds will have a favorable effect on the accident rate.

For pedestrians certain rules have been developed which everyone ought to obey:

1. The safe walker does not stop out carelessly from behind parked cars or obstructions.
2. He does not try to weave his way through traffic.
3. He crosses streets at right angles.

4. He uses care in getting on and off vehicles in traffic.
  5. He looks left and right when crossing a street.
  6. He obeys traffic signals.
  7. He holds his conferences in side walks, not in the middle of the streets.
  8. Children do not play in or on the streets.
  9. The pedestrian walks toward traffic, not with it, on open highways.
  10. He uses particular precautions when walking at night.
- Remember that many automobile accidents occur because someone has fallen asleep at the wheel or because some one has been careless about taking alcohol before driving.
- The fatal accident record is 65 per cent higher for drivers under 18 than for the general average. Children have no right to be driving motor cars any more than they should be trusted with firearms.
- The big days for damage are Saturday and Sunday. The accident rate on Sunday is 18 per cent in excess of the week day rate.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM LATEST BOOKS

A latest book, as colorful and as fascinating as birds themselves is "Natural History of the Birds of Eastern and Central North America" by Edward Howe Forbush and John Richard May (Houghton Mifflin: $4.95). Here are the life stories of nearly 600 birds, 96 full-page illustrations in full color by Fuesler, Brooks and Peterson. You will not easily put this book down. Just a jot of one life history is excerpted here:

The Ruby-Throated Hummingbird is in some respects the most remarkable bird of eastern North America. The tiny hummingbird is a mighty warrior, with greater strength and speed in proportion to its size than any other bird that flies. The flight muscles of the breast are relatively immense, and it is possessed of such spirit that it does not hesitate to attack any bird, no matter what its size, when occasion seems to require it. King bird, hawk, crow, eagle, all alike quickly feel the effects of the Ruby-throated Hummingbird's displeasure.

Its needle-like bill is an irritating little weapon and not to be despised when driven forward by its sturdy humming wings. These little wings, beating so fast the eye cannot see their motions nor ordinary camera depict them, carry it on long migrations, as the species ranges from Hudson Bay to Panama. Some of the Ruby-throats must cross wide stretches of ocean. They must pass over at least 600 miles to reach the Bermudas and 500 miles to cross the Gulf of Mexico to Yucatan and Central America.

The hummingbirds as a group are also, as far as I know, the only birds which can actually fly backwards, and it has seemed to me that their technique of flying must be entirely different from that of other birds.

This Tough Cop Raised 5 Motherless Children Alone

AP Feature Service
OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 9.—Down at Omaha police headquarters Nels Sorvenga is known as more than 200 pounds of tough cop.

At home, Nels is 200 pounds of expert cook and housekeeper—so expert that he has had seven proposals of marriage from women who read about his job of housework for five children left motherless nine years ago.

When he sheds his coat in the kitchen at home, Nels has no hard and fast routine for turning out delectable dishes for his lanky children. He just takes the general outline of a recipe, and adds or subtracts from it until he gets what he wants.

Only three children are at home now—two are out earning their own way. "It's been a job and I hate to do it again. But when I think of my kids out in California and the others getting ready to go away from home, I hate to see it ending," the "tough cop" noted.

Explaining why he never had wanted a housekeeper, Nels said: "When there was any disappointment of the kids, he'd say, 'I was the one to do it.'"

Swiss Rifleman Go Gunnina For Bear

ZURICH, Switzerland.—(AP)—Members of the crack Swiss rifle team which won the International Rifle Meet at Helsingfors, Finland, in 1937, were called to the Zurich zoo recently to shoot their own trophy.

Recently the Finn grew combative and insisted his Swiss and Arctic companions be forcibly taken to a different cage in the rifle team to execute it. The cub had been stuffed and was in the National Rifle Museum in Rome to be exhibited with other trophy shooting trophies.

The Great Gift

Lift up your hearts! Ring in the season for gifts both large and small. For the gift that gave to earth this season is the greatest gift of all. The gift that came to cheer and bless two thousand years ago. Returns again in the happiness of childhood's merry "Gle." Returns in the spirit of kindness to the lowly and the meek. To those that grope in blindness. To the beggar on the street. It comes in the spirit of peace. To speak throughout the world. That hatred and strife should cease. No flag of war unfurl. It comes as solace in distress. To those that weep in despair. O'er a vanished hand, the tender caress. The empty fireside chair. It comes to stay the hour. Of grief and death's dark night. With the all-sustaining power of healing, soothing light. That shines above earth's pain and strife. And amidst the season's throng. Gleams forth immortal life. And Love's triumphant song.—R. P.

Marks Episcopal church will meet Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. M. Finley, South Main street, with Mrs. Brooks Shultz as hostess.

The Friday Music club held its regular meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. C. Hyatt, South Hervey street, with Mrs. Jim McKinzie as joint hostess. The Choral practice, was held at 2:30, with Mrs. M. C. Butler directing. Mrs. Hollis Luck led the study on Mrs. H. H. A. Beach and Carrie Jacobs-Bond. "Estate" by Beach was given by Mrs. Dick Watkins, followed by "Hearns" given by Mrs. Robert Campbell. Mrs. Watkins sang Bond's "A Little Bit O' Honey" followed by Mrs. Kenneth L. Spore singing Bond's "Just a Wearyin' For You" and "His Lullaby." Mrs. Luck closed the program by singing "A Perfect Day" by Carrie Jacobs-Bond. The next meeting will be the Annual Christmas party on December 22nd, at the home of Mrs. A. C. Kolb on South Main street.

Announcement is made of the wedding of Mrs. Lucille Adams of Little Rock to R. T. White of this city. The marriage was solemnized in Arkadelphia, on December 2nd, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Fred R. Harrison, with Rev. Harrison officiating in the presence of a few intimate friends. Following a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. White are at home at 220 North Washington street.

The W. M. S. First Baptist church will meet at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the church for regular missionary program with circle No. 2 in charge.

The Brookwood P. T. A. held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Brookwood school with Mrs. Earl O'Neal presiding. The president's message was read by Miss Helen Betts. Mrs. B. C. Hyatt and a group of school children contributed beautiful Christmas music followed by a most interesting Christmas story related by Miss Bessie Green of the Paisley school faculty. In the count of mothers present, Mrs. Hyatt's room showed the greatest percentage. Home made candies was served during the social hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Smith of 715 West Avenue B. announce the arrival of a daughter on December 4, 1939, weight 7 1/2 pounds. She has been christened Carmelita. Mother and daughter are reported doing nicely. Mrs. Smith will be remembered as Lennie Belle Sullivan.

SERIAL STORY 5 WOULD KILL BY TOM HORNER

Yesterday, Dawson decides that someone who knew Benthorne's whereabouts "planted" the end for him to see. He also recalls the "three or a fourth" episode before Alston's death. As he goes upstairs to search Mrs. Benthorne's room again, he finds Alston at the door. The old man takes two more sleeping tablets, gives the box to Dawson, and then throws open the door to Helen Benthorne's room.

CHAPTER XXII
The room was practically unchanged since Dawson's last visit. Someone had made the bed, and the spread was tightly and neatly drawn. Ann, Dawson thought. A pillow on the chaise longue indicated where she had tried to rest.

He walked to the bed, lifted the mattress, then turned it completely over and on to the floor. If there had been a gun hidden there, it was certainly gone now. Dawson studied the underside of the mattress carefully, and the cover of the box springs. No trace of any outline that a revolver would certainly leave.

Where was that gun?
A slight noise startled him. He rushed to the door. It had sounded as if Alston's door had been opened. There was no one in the hall. A glance in Alston's room, showed the old man again stretched on the bed.
"It would take a bomb to wake him up now," Dawson said, half aloud. Deciding not to disturb Alston, the detective closed the door again, called Krone from the head of the stairway. The patrolman came up on a run.

"Keep an eye on this hall, and the one below, too, if you can, Krone," Dawson ordered. "Who is downstairs?"
"The coroner's deputy just arrived and the coroner is with him. I left them with di Torino. Mrs. Benthorne was in the living room."
Dawson nodded and returned to the bedroom. Krone took his post at the stairs, so that he could see both the upper and lower halls.
In a few moments he saw Helen Benthorne walk through the archway from the living room. Krone leaned out to watch her as she walked along the hall to the study. Then he heard the dining room door close and her footsteps died away.

Bruce Catton Says:

Capper Hires Hall to Hear What Folks Back Home Want

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Every senator spends a good part of his time trying to figure out what the folks back home want. Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas has hit upon a direct, fool-proof way to find out: he simply hires a hall and invites 'em to tell him.

On Dec. 20 he is going to hold the second of his informal farm conferences in Topeka.
He got the idea last year: invited any and all Kansas farmers who had anything on their minds to come to a public meeting and talk things over. More than 1000 of them responded. The senator listened to a solid day of five-minute speeches and felt that he learned a lot.

Farmers Made Special Guests
Now he's going to make this an annual affair. He has invited the governor of Kansas and the whole Kansas congressional delegation to attend the Dec. 20 conference, together with the heads of various farm organizations, and hopes that at least as many farmers will show up as came last year. There is no particular political aspect to it, and no set program is planned.

"I'll tell them what's been going on during this last session of Congress and what seems to be planned for the coming session," says Senator Capper.
"Then I'll ask them to tell me what they want and how they've been getting along. The idea is to let the farmer have a chance to express himself and make known what he thinks ought to be done."

"The conference won't make any formal recommendations—unless some one gets up and moves something—but out of it will come some ideas, certainly. It's an example of democracy functioning in a direct way."

Buy More Rum Campaign
The territory of Puerto Rico may spend up to half a million dollars of territorial funds advertising its rum next year, if plans now being talked up by some of the island's business men go through.

Puerto Rico has a rather thriving distilling industry, on which the islanders depend for their "rum." The territory's rum industry is a rather thriving distilling industry, on which the islanders depend for their "rum."

man" back, Nile Clarke Kinnick; Clemson's triple-threat, James Banks McFadden; Southern California's Harry Burdette Smith at guard; Santa Clara's John George Schiehl at center and Notre Dame's William Howard (Bud) Kerr at end.

The Old South, with probably the greatest collection of football talent it has ever produced, garnered more first team spots than any other sector, four, and sharply disputed Middle West dominance of the All-America squad as a whole—first, second and third teams.

Middle West Gets Three
Three spots on the No. 1 team went to the Middle West, two to the Far West, and one each to the East and Southwest. But a nite all-star squad of 33, the Middle West had a nine to eight edge over the South, with six positions to the Far West and five each to the Southwest and East.

For thesecond successive year the Big Three—Princeton, Harvard and Yale—which monopolized the early selections, failed to land a single contender. The Service teams, Army and Navy, unrepresented for three seasons, furnished Tackle Harry Stella, the one bright spot in a disastrous West Point campaign, for the second eleven. Clemson with McFadden and Tennessee with Molinski got first-team recognition for the first time.

Among the major teams, Iowa's Hawkeyes, a little band of hardy warriors who fought through a big league schedule with little relief, stood out in a season which saw many of the power houses, such as Southern California, Tulane, Tennessee, Cornell and Notre Dame, handle their substitutions in complete team units. This method undoubtedly had its strategic effectiveness but it served to make All-America selections just that much more difficult.

With so many fine backs cutting loose for broken-field touchdowns, rifling scoring passes and making an offensive weapon of the punt with coffin-corner out-of-bounds boots, the hottest All-America argument naturally revolved around the backfield contenders.

The quartet finally chosen possessed every requisite. They were tops for running, passing, kicking, blocking and defensive play. Furthermore, they had speed and power, and, even more important, brains.
Because of his long downfield runs, which caused many gridiron followers to compare him favorably with Jimmie's famous "Galloping Ghost" of a decade and a half ago, Tom Harmon was probably the most spectacular back of the year.
Tom's greatest day was against Iowa, when he scored all of Michigan's points in the 27-7 victory, the only setback of the year for the Hawkeyes, and ran one intercepted pass 90 yards for a touchdown.

You'll Soon Be Pronouncing It -- 'GLAMAH GIRL'

The Scene

The editorial offices of NEA the famous newspaper feature service. In New York.

The Cast

Marian Young, woman's page editor of NEA and noted authority on fashion and beauty.

Ruth Millett, popular commentator on feminine affairs and conductor of the daily column "We, the Women."

The Managing Editor.

They are in the midst of an editorial conference.

Managing Editor: That breeze blowing on our necks, ladies, is "Gone With the Wind" . . . Miss Young, you are the one whom Hollywood itself credits with (or blames for) inventing the phrase "Glamah Girl." Don't you think this new film, and all the accompanying fuss, is likely to foist a new kind of glamah girl onto the unsuspecting public?

Marian Young: Yes, She'll be a glamah girl.

Managing Editor: Good! What will she be like?

Ruth Millett: Well, sir, Boss Man--she'll certainly be more like the Civil War belle than anything that has been seen since that period.

Marian Young: Particularly where her clothes, hair and makeup are concerned.

Managing Editor: You don't mean she's going to get rid of her "Hollywood glamah" -- long bob, big mouth and vacant stare?

M. Y.: I certainly do. She'll chop off a little of that shoulder-length mane and wear it in curls on the nape of her neck, as Scarlett did. She'll affect a delicate, Dresden china makeup to achieve a pink and white look. She'll trade in her streamlined compact for a powder case copied after an old snuff box.

R. M.: And her manners will be just as pastel as her makeup. No more loafin' gin bar-rooms. No more of the "I-can-take-care-of-myself" attitude. She'll be a belle or know the reason why.

M. Ed.: You mean she'll go coy on us?

R. M.: She will! That old "are you not a great big wonderful man" line will get a workout it hasn't had in years.

M. Y.: Clothes will help her there. A wasp waist and a hoop skirt practically push a girl into the clinging vine attitudes. Anyway, there women in hoop skirts couldn't get into the more crowded bars.

R. M.: That very fact may lead to the old-fashioned "at homes." Tea in the drawing room instead of cocktails in town.

M. Y.: She'll even change the drawing room to make it a background that will set off her picture book clothes.

M. Ed.: You mean she'll actually go out and buy a Victorian sofa and a what-not?

M. Y.: Yes. And stuffed white doves under glass for the mantel; needlepoint covers for her chairs; bric-a-brac for the what-not.

R. M.: Do you suppose she'll have one of those oh-so-feminine dressing tables with artificial flowers plastered around the mirror?

M. Y.: Yes. I think she'll even go so far as to have her women guests demurely retire to the drawing room for conversation about the servant problem and flower arrangement while the men swap stories over port and walnuts in the dining room.

R. M.: And when the gentlemen rejoin the ladies, every eyelash in the room will flutter.

M. Y.: Not false eyelashes, either!

R. M.: Dell, pull off your eyelashes, Scarlett, and we'll run out and get a hoop skirt. We might as well climb on the band wagon now.

M. Y.: Not so fast, Melanie--I might swoon!

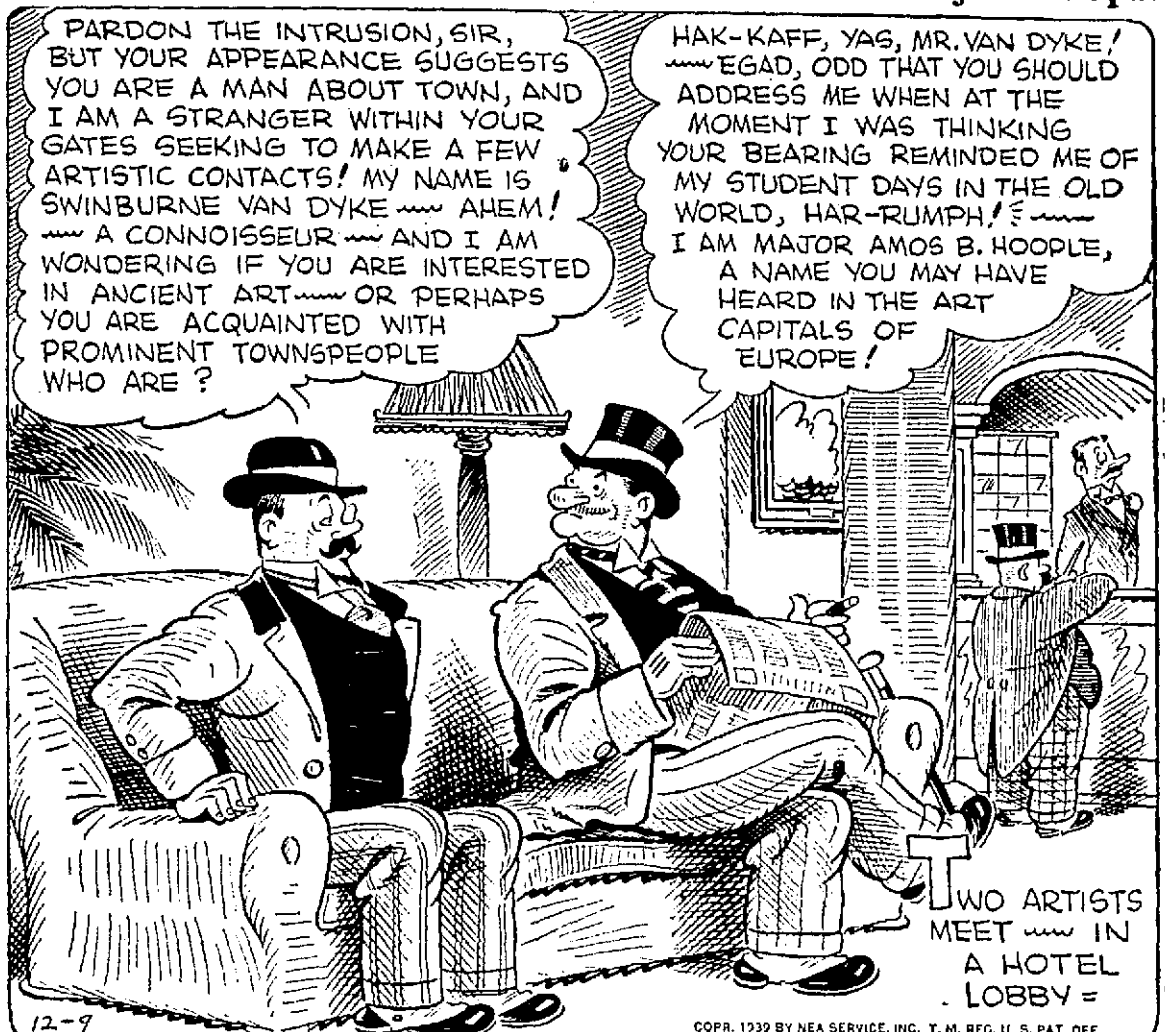

M. Ed.: I'm sorry I brought the subject up.

spread.

Hitler's mighty threats to France have so far proved empty. His surrender to Russia--his abandonment of the role of Anti-bolshevist No. One--is regarded as an evidence of known weakness.

All this induces many observers to conclude that three possibilities loom ahead:

1. Hitler will try clandestinely to bring about peace this winter.
2. There will be a leftwing revolt in Germany with the aid of Russia, and Germany will fall into the hands of the communists.
3. There will be an economic collapse followed by a struggle between the right and left-wing forces amounting to a revolution. France and England will take advantage of this to maneuver a dismemberment of Germany.

Germany, on the other hand, believes that Britain, a capitalist economic unit, cannot stand the strain of a long war and will crack up before Germany does. The prospect of this is extremely light.

TOMORROW: The Allied side of the economic front.

Individual horses have been known to reach the age of 40 or more.

Cracking up in her crib is getting to be a habit with six-weeks-old Patricia Ann Boyce of Beaver Falls, Pa. She suffered a broken arm when her crib fell apart the first time. Now she's patching a broken leg after it crumbled again. Her parents had tried to repair the crib, a natal present, with glue the first time.

In 1933, after nearly 30 years of colonization, twenty thousand nationals of the very maximum had taken up residence in the whole of the German colonial Empire, says a study of "Population and Peace," issued by the Columbia University Press. This, it is pointed out, is considerably less than the number of Germans living in 1914.

spirit, but the letter of the law--poverty being on his side.

After giving poverty full credit for its assistance in helping the writer to live up to the letter and spirit of the Corrupt Practice Acts, he believes that according to the rules of his party and the laws of his State that he should be serving the people of Arkansas as the legal Governor of his native State. Am I right or wrong? Don't you think we ought to clean up our political house and have a sure enough honest to-God election in 1940.

In reference to the violations of our party rules and State laws during the last Governor's race, may I close in the slang of the typical Yankee who notices Southern slang but is unconscious of his own--this "Haden't Oughta Happened."

WE, THE WOMEN

A brief but poignant story recently in the newspapers tells how Dominick Lachucha, 49, almost died of hunger clinging to his "self-respect."

Most people feel there are some things they wouldn't do--come high water Dominick had such a standard. He would not take food unless he could work to earn it.

For five days he could not pay his way--and so he didn't eat. He might have starved to death, the doctors said, if he hadn't collapsed in the street and been taken to a hospital, where he was too weak to fight.

Dominick Lachucha carried his pride too far--so far, in fact, that he was forced to accept more charity in the end because of that pride.

But in an age when his kind of pride is scarce, it is a touching story. And one that young folks could profit by, if they would temper pride with reason.

There are too many young people today who would rather have their parents accept charity than provide for them.

There are too many who don't mind moving in with the old folks claiming that marriage is their right--whether they can support a marriage or not.

There are too many "chiselers" who think the more you can get for nothing, the smarter you are.

There are too many people trying to outsmart each other.

The country needs more of the "I won't take what I can't pay for" spirit. Especially in the young.
